WAS IT COERCION?

If it is true that a recent executive act of the Senate was done under constraint, from threats of resignation made by the President and one or more of the Ministers, the people have cause to take alarm for their liberties. For a certain period under the monarchy Ministers were never sure of a day's tenure of their positions. The sovereign exercised the power of summary dismissal over them. As the people had little or nothing to do with their appointment, however, their dismissal did not cause much more excitement than a steamer arrival from the coast. Now and then, when an obnoxious Ministry was appointed, there would be demonstrations of discontent to which the sovereign was not always unyielding.

Now that we have the name of a republic, there should be no unconstitutional checks upon the will of the people, as expressed through their representatives. The Executive has got enough arbitrary power in the constitution without taking more to itself by tactics borrowed apparently from "kicking" ball players. It is no great credit to Senators that they should give way to such tactics in star chamber conclaves. They were not sent there by the electors to protect the Executive but to control it. Want of control over the executive, in any system of government, means a want of liberty for the people. The reported surrender of the Senate to the Executive, in the case in question, is due to the humiliating assumption that one man and one set of men at the head of affairs are indispensable to the stability of the system and the good government of the country. If there is any real ground for this assumption it lies in the fear that the dominant clique would if relieved of power be the most unscrupulous faction of opposition to their successors. This was the case long before the ostensible cause was given for the revolt of 1893, some of the present rulers, whose party was in a distinct minority by itself, obstructing every effort at any compromise that would not give them the lion's share in the administration.

If the republic is not to be utterly discredited at home and abroad, and exposed as a republic only in name and not in nature, the Legislature must exercise its entire functions, within its constitutional limitations which are only too closely drawn, by acting always in accordance with the understood wishes of the people. A legislature that exists only to register the decrees of the executive is no legislature at all, and a system that cannot provide a legislature independent of the executive may be called anything but a republic.

PARDONS EXPECTED.

It is to be presumed that the early convening of the Council of State, which is announced, is for the purpose of considering pardons of political prisoners to signalize the first anniversary of the republic. The Government press has been silent on this question, neither advocating nor opposing this means of reconciliation. Perhaps those papers regard it as too big a jump from their early clamor for wholesale executions to a forgiving policy of throwing open the prison doors. They would do themselves great credit, however, if they took such a jump. The Government will have nothing to gain but much favor to lose, by keeping in prison any of the natives who were duped into following the leaders to the field. Those thoughtless young men who, while evincing youthful indiscretion in taking leading parts, showed the unmistakable courage of their convictions in going to the front, should be given a chance of beginning life anew. Misguided patriotism, or even infatuation for adventure, ought not to consign bright young fellows, with competence for successful business careers, like Widemann, Greig and Marshall, to the doom of duration vile until all their chances of useful lives are gone. Even the leaders of the movement have had a lesson that will doubtless last them for all time, and a short vacation abroad would suffice to qualify them as masters in the school of wisdom. The war is long enough past now to be mere history, and its prisoners ought to be released with, perhaps, special conditions of liberty in particular cases. So long as there are prisoners of war the bad feelings of war cannot be eradicated.

OBSERVATIONS.

Before the calling of a meeting of the Council of State, one would think the body would have been placed on a legal basis. While the House promptly repaired its mistakes in electing ineligible persons, the President and the Senate had not been heard from before the call in similar reparation.

Timely Topics

June 26, 1895.

INTO the soft, warm light of the drawing-room the heavy odors from the conservatory floated and filled the place as with a fog of flowers.

Beneath the crystal chandelier, which shone in the mellow light as a suspended rainbow in an atmosphere of gold, stood a fair, pale girl, erect, imperious, beautiful.

Shrinking away into the shadows was the object of it. It was a young man in a red waistcoat, with other things to match.

He had told her of his love for her, of his devotion to her; of his worship, of the dear desire of his heart to make her his own, and in the midst of it she stopped him suddenly.

"Enough," she exclaimed. "Enough! I will not listen to another word."

"Hear me out," he pleaded. "Hear me out."

"Never," she laughed, scornfully, "but I will take great pleasure in seeing you out," and the shadows closed around that shrinking youth like the deadly arms of the octopus.

Slowly and sadly he mounted his wheel and rode forth into the cold, cold world of this city. In spite of our Paradise-of-the-Pacific climate it had been a cold day for him and he could not get rid of a crushed-strawberry-and-ice-cream feeling in the region of his heart which would not away.

Passing the Hawaiian Hardware Company's store the brilliant scintillations from the electric globes on the Monarch bicycle in their window attracted his attention and like an electric flash the thought entered his mind, "I wonder if she is mad because I never asked her to take a bicycle ride with me. I'll do it if it takes my last dollar." Without a second's hesitation he walked into the store and ordered a Monarch ladies' wheel sent to her house, first tying his card to it.

That same evening he received a polite note asking him to call again. He went and two minutes sufficed to make him the happiest man in Honolulu, the cause of the whole trouble being that the young lady suspected him of taking other girls out bicycle riding and was jealous accordingly. There will be another wedding in Honolulu in a few weeks.

While we are on the subject of girls and wheels we will state that we are prepared to furnish bicycles enough, for every engaged girl in Honolulu or even for every girl who wants to be engaged.

Ladies and misses are cordially invited to call at the store and examine the Monarch wheels, for which we are sole agents for the Hawaiian Islands.

New Process Stove

No lottery, raffle or game of chance, but a straight business proposition. Every person who purchases one of our New Process Stoves between THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 27, and 10 o'clock WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 7, will be entitled to one guess as to how many of these stoves will be sold up to that time, it being then just five months since the first stove was purchased. The person guessing correctly, or coming nearest to the correct number, will receive at once a present in cash of the full amount paid for his stove; in case of two or more persons guessing the winning number, each shall make a further guess on the sales of the following week, the person thus finally receiving the prize.

As the stoves will be sold at regular price, no one risks anything, only if you guess near to the right number your stove costs you nothing. The prize being simply an ad. for New Process Stoves. Seal your guess in an envelope and place your name and address on the inside, and write your mark on the outside. The envelopes will be carefully kept and no one but the guesser will know what is inside until the date of opening. A correct list of stoves sold will be hung up before the opening of envelopes, which will be done at our store in the Waring Block, Fort and Beretania, at 1 p.m. on August 7, in the presence of stove purchasers and public.
